

GAMIFICATION STRATEGY

DESTINATION: ALGHERO NATURAL RESERVE

6.1.1 Current Tourist Site Situations

DESTINATION OVERVIEW:

The area located outside the city center is characterized by a great variety of environments of high naturalistic and historical interest. It encompasses two parks, the Porto Conte Regional Park and the Capo Caccia-Isola Piana Protected Marine Area distinguished by their great variety of settings and for their profusion of floral and faunal species which are of particular scientific interest. Inside it includes the state forest "Le Prigionette", a part of the Geo-mining Park of Sardinia, the SCI (Site of Community Importance) Capo Caccia and Punta Giglio. Here the blue of the sea and the green of the landscape draw unexpected paths between the signs of ancient and large civilization. An infinity of paths where archeology and history coexist in enchanting and uncontaminated landscapes: Domus de Janas, Nuraghi, phoenix traces, Roman villas emerge from the Mediterranean scrub.

ECO MUSEUM EGEA

Site Overview

Eco Museum EGEA recounts the historical events behind the birth of the inclusive and varied community of Fertilia. In particular, the OFFICINE pavilion tells of the Exodus of The Istrians, Fiumans, and Dalmatians, some of whom landed on the shores of the Calich Lagoon. These populations found the ideal place to rebuild their homes in the "City of Foundation", despite the interruptions caused by the outbreak of the Second World War. The Museum strives to make known the history of a land made fertile by the work of man; a land that welcomed people from Sardinia, Alghero, Ferrara, Veneto, Istria, Fiume, Dalmatia, those repatriated from Libya, Eritrea, Corsica, and numerous other people who came at different times from every corner of the globe. This Museum aims to "keep a light on memory" and to "bring together the threads of history" for all those who have been forced by overwhelming historical events to leave their birthplace in search of a new landing place in which to carry out their existence in freedom.

Importance of the Site

The Eco Museum EGEA has been selected for gamification because of its historical and cultural importance.

The aim of the museum is to draw up a census of the exodus of the Istrian, Fiuman, and Dalmatian people, by researching data in archives all over the world:

- the filing of all the Refugee Collection Centres present on the national territory
- the involvement, inside and outside the national territory, of the last witnesses, still living today, of this Biblical Exodus, in the preservation of their memory.

The museum intends to bring together in a large digital container all the names, places, photographs, documents, memories, publications and any other testimony of a people scattered throughout the five continents of the world.

Suggested Individual Game applications

- Games based on the reconstruction of memory
- Games based on the encounter between generations

SAINT EXUPERY MUSEUM

Site Overview

The museum celebrates the writer-aviator's life and works. On 10th May 1944, Antoine De Saint-Exupéry arrived at the military airport of Fertilia in a B26 aircraft piloted by Captain Rouzard. He lived in Alghero until July of the same year: in the Bay of Porto Conte, in a villa on a small hill facing the Torre Nuova. Here, he wrote most of his novel "The Wisdom of the Sands" and his last work, "Letter to an American". The writer-aviator's life and works are celebrated by MASE in a dedicated museum space in the very places so dear to the author of "The Little Prince". The museum retraces the most captivating and audacious steps of his life, guiding us in the discovery of interesting and unexpected details surrounding his links with the city of Alghero. The rooms and display cases house themed installations, personal keepsakes, period documents and works of art as well as detailed information panels. Photos taken in Alghero in 1944 by John Phillips, the internationally renowned Life magazine photojournalist, who produced a photo report immortalising the writer's final days, are also on display.

Importance of the Site

MASE has been selected for gamification because of its historical and cultural importance: it illustrates the history of the city through the life of Antoine De Saint-Exupéry.

The exhibition traces the life of the writer Antoine De Saint-Exupéry and focuses on the period of his stay in Alghero. In the rooms and display cases, you can admire all the first editions of the author's books, themed installations, works of art, objects, memorabilia and period documents. Information panels and photos taken in Alghero by John Phillips in 1944 will accompany you on your journey.

Antoine De Saint-Exupéry lived in Alghero from May 1944 until July of the same year in the Bay of Porto Conte, in a villa situated on a slight rise in front of the Torre Nuova, built in 1572. As a pilot he flew for the Allied American air force stationed at the military base of Fertilia, where he was entrusted with reconnaissance flights over the coast of France to locate and photograph German outposts.

Author of masterpieces such as The Little Prince, the most widely read book in the history of literature after the Bible and the Koran, he lived the last significant months of his life in the city, also celebrating his last birthday. It was here that the aviator poet, lulled by the waves, wrote most of his novel The Citadel and his last text, Letter to an American. During his stay at Alghero airport, John Phillips, internationally renowned photo reporter for the famous American Life magazine, produced a photo report on the writer that immortalised the last moments of his life. Antoine De Saint-Exupéry disappeared forever from the skies over France on 31 July 1944, after taking off from Bastia at Borgo airport.
